DETAILED ACTION

This is a second Office action on the merits on application number 09/090,067 filed 6/03/98.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 3-6, 8-11, 13-16, 18-21, and 23-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Craven et al. (5,157,424) in view of Merry et al. (5,178, 418).

Craven et al. discloses a method and apparatus for manufacturing tamper-resistant identification cards comprising first printed matter (16) at a first location at a first scale, said first printed matter (16) being able to be viewed by a person without magnification, second printed matter (20) representing said first printed matter (16) rendered at a second location at a second scale in a single color, said second scale being significantly smaller than said first scale, said first (16) and second (20) printed matter conveying identifying information, said first (16) and second (20) printed matter is specific to the identified person.

Craven et al. discloses the claimed invention except for the following: said second printed matter consisting of relatively dark or light toned text printed on a background color which is either lighter or darker toned, respectively, said first and second printed matter comprising at least two digits of the year of a birth of a person, said second printed matter being a graphical reproduction of said first printed matter, and a plurality of identification documents.

In regards to the contrasting colors of the second printed matter and the background, Craven et al. discloses printed matter having a color contrasting with the background of the document.

In regards to the first and second printed matter comprising at least two digits of the year of a birth of a person. Craven et al. discloses indicia relating to the personal identification, such as birth date, social security number, license number, of an individual. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the at least two digits of the year of a birth of a person in the second printed matter to increase the security of the document.

In regards to said second printed matter being a graphical reproduction of said first printed matter, Craven et al. discloses a second printed matter (20) superimposed over a photograph (18) relating to the first printed matter.

In regards to the plurality of identification documents, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide a plurality of identification documents, since it has been held that mere duplication of the essential working parts of a device involves only routine skill in the art. St. Regis Paper Co. v. Bemis Co., 193 USPQ 8.

Craven et al. discloses the claimed invention except for the following: the second printed matter cannot be clearly viewed by a person without magnification. Merry et al. discloses a security device comprising printed matter (characters) that are viewed by magnification means. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the identification card of Craven et al., as taught by Merry et al. (5,178,418), to provide means of easily viewing printed matter on the card.

Craven et al. disclose the claimed invention except for the following: first and second printed matter comprising alphanumeric characters. Merry et al. disclose a security device comprising alphanumeric characters (col. 1, lines 49-50). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the identification card of Craven et al., as taught by Merry et al., to provide an alternate design of printed matter to secure the card.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed December 6, 1999, have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Art Unit: 3722

Applicant argues that Craven et al. does not disclose a document with printed matter which requires magnification for viewing. Examiner respectfully agrees; however, Merry et al. disclose the use of magnification to view characters (See col. 2, lines 50-54).

Applicant argues that Merry et al. does not disclose first and second printed matter conveying identifying information. Examiner disagrees. Merry et al. discloses characters which “may make up any word, phrase or symbol” (See col. 2, lines 43-44) which would include first and second printed matter conveying identifying information. Furthermore, Merry et al. is used solely for the teaching of magnifying printed matter for clearer visibility to the viewer.

Conclusion

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a).

Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
